

CONTENTS

Preface.....	ix
Abbreviations	xi
1. Introduction	1
1.1 A Synthesis Rooted in Speculative Christology	2
1.2 Cusanus's Philosophical Hermeneutics	9
1.3 Concerning Methodology.....	14
1.4 An Overview	17
2. The Theology of the Word as a Theory of Language	19
2.1 The Language of Speculative Theology	20
2.1.1 Philosophy in theology and theology in philosophy	21
2.1.2 The determination of a theology of the Word through analogical language	30
2.1.3 Beyond contextualist and metalinguistic theories of language	36
2.2 Cusanus's Role in the Development of the Concept of Language.....	47
2.2.1 Medieval Verbum speculation in the history of the concept of language	48
2.2.2 The interpretation of Cusanus's thought in Truth and Method	59
2.2.3 The value and limits of Gadamer's interpretation	63
2.3 The Language of Praise.....	65
2.3.1 Scientia laudis : Praise as a form of knowledge.....	70
2.3.2 Descensus ad inferos : In praise of the dead God	73
2.3.3 Knowledge of praise as spiritual bread	75
2.4 Conclusion: Eucharistic Praise as the Hermeneutical Key to Theology.....	79
3. Theologia Sermocinalis : A Key to Cusanus's Theology of Language	89
3.1 The Medieval Sources of the Layman's Theologia Sermocinalis in Idiota de Sapientia	89

3.1.1 The theology of the spoken word in Idiota de sapientia	89
3.1.2 The medieval pre-history and sources of the term sermocinalis	96
3.1.3 Heymeric van de Velde's interpretation of the scientiae sermocinales	114
3.1.4 Conclusion	122
3.2 Cusanus's Lay Wisdom and the Theologia Rhetorica of Quattrocento Humanism	124
3.2.1 The form of Cusanus's humanism	124
3.2.2 Cusanus and the theologia rhetorica of the Italian humanists	137
3.2.3 The compatibility of theologia sermocinalis with the study of the quadrivium	155
3.2.4 Lay wisdom and the humanist hermeneutic	161
4. The Word and the Making of the World: The Development of Cusanus's Thought on Language	165
4.1 Productio Verbi and Divine Ineffability: Cusanus's Theory of Language from 1430 to 1445	165
4.1.1 From productio Verbi to speculatio Verbi : An overview of the turn to language in Cusanus's thought	166
4.1.2 The production of the Word in the early sermons	170
4.1.3 The theology of divine names from 1430 to 1441	175
4.1.4 The ascent of the intellect beyond language in De coniecturis	184
4.1.5 Christ as the mirror of the Word in De filiatione	193
4.2 The Craft of Naming in Idiota de Mente (1450)	202
4.2.1 The imposition of names as a craft	202
4.2.2 Ars imitatur naturam	211
4.2.3 Ramon Llull's De affatu	219
4.2.4 Conclusion	226
4.3 The Speculative View of Language in the Late Works	229
4.3.1 The distinctive character of the later works	229
4.3.2 The meaning of the signifier "A" in De li non aliud	243
4.3.3 The theosemiotic of the Compendium	254
4.4 Conclusion	272

5. Through Faith to the Word	275
5.1 Faith and Analogical Knowledge	277
5.2 The Faith of Jesus Christ	282
5.3 The Gnoseological Vision of Faith.....	287
5.4 The Union of Faith and Vision.....	291
5.5 Conclusion	298
Afterword: Research on Cusanus's Theology of Language Published between 2001–2012.....	305
Appendix I: De logica practica et speculativa	379
Appendix II: Cusanus's Correspondence with Lorenzo Valla	387
Letter 751	387
Letter 763.....	387
Appendix III: Preface to a Translation by George of Trebizond Owned by Nicholas of Cusa	389
Appendix IV: Ramon Llull's Figure A	393
Bibliography	401
Index	419